TO MEET HEINZ PEOPLE AT THE
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
MAY 15TH

BRAINERD CHAMBER TO ENTER-
TAIN FARMER GROWERS
AT LUNCHEON

Brainerd is to have another big farmers day on Thursday, May 15th, when about 140 farmers in the territory adjacent to the city will meet a representative of the H. J. Heinz Pickle company and receive their seed and instructions for raising cucumbers according to contracts which they have made with this company.

The Brainerd Chamber of Commerce will entertain these farmers at a noon luncheon, and the growers will receive their instructions in the organization's parlors.

E. J. Quinn, chairman of the entertainment committee, will not be able to take charge of the luncheon, but Mrs. Quinn has kindly consented to take his place, and with the assistance of a number of Brainerd ladies will serve the meal. Members of the Chamber are asked to participate in this luncheon with their farmer friends. It is expected that at least two hundred will be fed.

H. H. Cowan, of the Heinz company, who has kept in close touch with the pickle acreage campaign, will be present to instruct the farmers in the planting of their seed, which under the contract is furnished free. He will show motion pictures of cucumber culture to augment his instructions, and which should give the growers a very good idea of what their work will be.

The Heinz pickle company decided upon the Brainerd territory as one of its major fields of operation only after an extensive survey of local conditions. The company feels that this should make an ideal cucumber-growing district, and if the industry which is starting in a small way this season, increases as rapidly as it has in other localities where the Heinz people are operating, Brainerd may become the center of a new industry which may assume such proportions that a large receiving depot will be located here.

The company placed a limit of one hundred and fifty acres to be devoted to cucumber raising this year, but that limit was later increased by ten acres to accommodate several additional farmers who were very anxious to be included.

Mr. Cowan appeared before the local Lions club early in the winter and explained the proposition which his company intended to offer the farmers of this locality. The club was so favorably impressed that it took upon itself the task of signing up the required acreage, the limit of which was reached nearly two months previous to the date the company had set for the completion of the work.

Mr. Cowan states that a cucumber salting station will be erected in Brainerd this spring to take care of the crop as it comes in. It is expected that this station will be located on North Tenth street near the railway tracks. The growers will deliver their cucumbers each morning at the station, and will receive cash for their deliveries each day, thus giving them a cash income during the summer months which usually are lean months for the farmer. It is said that the crop with proper care should be mature early in the summer, and continue until the first kills the vines, usually in September.

SHOOTS STUDENT, POLICEMAN CLAIMS HE WAS PEEPER

MADISON, WISCONSIN, POLICE-MAN GIVES HIS VERSION OF KILLING

PORCH LOOKING INTO HIS WIFE'S ROOM

(By United Press)
Madison, Wis., May 13.—Peter M. Posepny, 21, of Two Rivers, Wis., a student at the University of Wisconsin, was shot and killed here early today by Patrick Powers, a veteran Madison policeman.

Posepny was slain near the Powers' residence where the officer said he had been prowling.

Extra policemen were stationed at the student quarters to prevent disorders as university students gathered in pool halls and club rooms discussing the shooting in low tones.

Posepny was a third year student in the commerce school. He had always lived quietly in the university and had never been involved in any previous disturbance.

Madison police officials gave out a formal statement this morning saying they would back Powers to the limit.

Powers returned from a picture show early Monday evening and went to bed in the front room of the first floor of his home, he told investigators.

He was awakened by his wife who said she saw a man looking in her window.

Mrs. Powers left her room and called her husband who went to the front door armed with a revolver. It was raining hard.

Powers found Posepny on the porch flattened against the wall of the house. He called to him to put up his hands, he said, but the student ran down the steps and Powers shot him as he reached the street. He died in the policeman's arms.

Posepny left his room early last evening with a crowd of students it was learned, and police have been unable to trace his movements from that time. They are looking for the students who accompanied Posepny.

Slaying of Posepny recalls the killing three years ago of Carl Jandorf, Grand Rapids, Michigan, by Policeman Matthew Lynaugh. Lynaugh was acquitted of first degree murder. He shot the student after the latter had "stolen" a barber pole during a class "cap night."

University authorities immediately demanded that Powers be suspended pending an investigation. Mayor Kittleson said he would decide later whether the demand would be complied with.

Coroner Stevenson, District Attorney Lewis and Dean Goodnight of the university co-operated in probing conditions surrounding the shooting. No arrests have been made but several students will be questioned, authorities said.

HACKENSACK HAS AN EARLY MORNING FIRE

FOUR BUSINESS HOUSES BURNED

TODAY

FIRE EQUIPMENT WAS INADE-QUATE TO COPE WITH THE

Hackensack, located on the Minnesota & International railway about 40 miles north of Brainerd, was visited by a disastrous fire threatening the whole town, at 3 o'clock this morning.

Of unknown origin, the flames levelled the Isaak general store, the J. P. Brennan garage, Jack Lathrop restaurant, Sorenson store and many smaller buildings. A stiff northwest wind fanned the flames and the fire equipment, a small chemical apparatus, was entirely inadequate. The fire raged until its fury was spent, leaving a big black mark in the business section located along the street running parallel to the railway tracks. No damage to railway property was reported.

By superhuman effort the cars in the garage were shoved out and into a safety zone. The garage was of cement block construction while the other buildings were all frame. This is the second large fire Hackensack has had in the space of a few months.

Entire losses sustained are estimated at $30,000.

FRESH AIR DISPUTE ENDS IN KILLINGS

(By United Press)
Chicago, May 13.—A fresh air dispute caused the death of three men here today—two shot to death and the third a suicide.

John C. Gardner, 60, an inspector for the Illinois Malleable Iron company, shot and killed Herman Krause, 40, and R. W. Wilcox, 34, also inspectors.

Gardner also took a shot at a third man, but missed, threatened 35 other employees, and then ran half a mile from the plant to a vacant lot and committed suicide.

A son of Wilcox started the trouble when he insisted on keeping open the window in the office occupied by the inspectors and the other employees. Gardner argued against keeping the window open on the grounds that the cold air made him ill.

Today Gardner walked into the office and ordered that the window be closed. Young Wilcox refused and Krause sided with him.

Gardner walked out and returned with a revolver. He shot Krause and the other workers fled. In another office Gardner found the older Wilcox and shot him.

Washington, May 13.—President Coolidge today won the first skirmish in his fight to prevent congress appropriating money "outside the budget." The senate by a narrow margin of one vote sustained Mr. Coolidge in his veto of the Bureau pension increase bill.

DEFECTIVE ASH PIT MAY COST RAILROAD $1,000 FOR TWO DAYS

St. Paul, May 13.—It may cost the Great Northern $500 a day because the road operated an engine on which the ashpit was open three-fourths of an inch.

The attorney general has filed the first suit ever started under the 1919 law, which provides a penalty for operating an engine without a proper ashpit, during the forest fire season, through any part of the state which is wooded.

The action was started in Ramsey county district court, and charges that the Great Northern operated the defective engine for two days, between Sept. 19 and 25, 1923, on its lines between Crookston and Noyes, and Crookston and Cass Lake.

The road was informed of the defect by a state inspector, the complaint says, in asking judgment of $1,000 and interest since Sept. 25, 1923.

The hole in the ashpan, it is charged, allowed burning coal to be strewn along the right-of-way, with consequent danger of grass and forest fires.

LOWLANDS INUN-
DATED

(By United Press)
Pittsburgh, Pa., May 13.—Flood waters of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers are doing thousands of dollars damage to river front properties and lowlands.

A stage of 25.9 feet was registered this morning at Point Bridge where the two streams form the Ohio. Flood stage is 22 feet. The rivers, however, are only rising at the rate of about 2-10 foot an hour and the crest is not expected to reach 27 feet.

Freight tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad along the Allegheny river at Pittsburgh today were under three feet of water. Hundreds of cellars of business houses and homes were flooded.

Heavy rains on the water-sheds of the river caused the high waters, according to the weather bureau.

PEOPLE OF JETHRO, OHIO,
MOVE TO AVOID FLOOD

East Liverpool, Ohio, May 13.—Residents of Jethro, a suburb, today were moving from their homes as the 35 foot flood stage in the Ohio river seemed inevitable before night. The water stood at 31.8 at 10 a. m. and was rising.

Dravosburg, Pa., May 13.—Flood waters of the Monongahela river today forced more than 75 families here to vacate the first floors of their homes and many residents along the river front fled to higher land.

Many dwellings in McKeesport were affected by high waters, it was reported here.

POTOMAC RIVER IN
RAMPAGE, 2 DROWNED

Baltimore, Md., May 13.—Flood waters sweeping the Potomac river in Western Maryland today resulted in two deaths, damaged property valued at several million dollars and completely tied up railroad and vehicle traffic along the river.

All along the Potomac from Cumberland to Harper's Ferry, West Virginia, conditions similar to those of March when the waters reached its highest level were reported.

President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, following reports of conditions west of Martinsburg, left for the vicinity of the flood.

DEFECTIVE ASH PIT
MAY COST RAILROAD
$1,000 FOR TWO DAYS

St. Paul, May 13.—It may cost the Great Northern $500 a day because the road operated an engine on which the ashpit was open three-fourths of an inch.

The attorney general has filed the first suit ever started under the 1919 law, which provides a penalty for operating an engine without a proper ashpit, during the forest fire season, through any part of the state which is wooded.

The action was started in Ramsey county district court, and charges that the Great Northern operated the defective engine for two days, between Sept. 19 and 25, 1923, on its lines between Crookston and Noyes, and Crookston and Cass Lake.

The road was informed of the defect by a state inspector, the complaint says, in asking judgment of $1,000 and interest since Sept. 25, 1923.

The hole in the ashpan, it is charged, allowed burning coal to be strewn along the right-of-way, with consequent danger of grass and forest fires.

mistress believed that when work on it stopped, she would die.

At the death of her husband, nearly forty years ago, Mrs. Winchester came to San Jose and bought a house of seventeen rooms, then just completed. It stood on a tract of thirty acres. When the architect and builder refused to tear down work that had been well and properly executed, Mrs. Winchester discharged them and became her own architect. For thirty-eight years she carried on her work of construction, and at the time of her death the house, which looks like a village, contained one hundred and forty-four rooms, two thousand doors, and one hundred and fifty thousand panes of glass.

The material alone in the house is said to have cost one million dollars, and the total cost of the building is supposed to be not less than five million. It rambles, grotesque and gigantic, over acres of ground. Its roofs look like those of a little city. Its interior arrangements are the vision of a disordered brain and imagination, made visible in rare woods, fine marbles, strained glass, silver and gold. Even the guides find it so difficult to lead visitors about that they have to have arrows painted on the floor so they will not get lost.

Mrs. Winchester was an ardent spiritualist, and in one of the rooms, to which no one in her lifetime was ever admitted, she believed she met the spirit of her husband. In another room, sacred to her own uses, she held, as she believed, seances with spirits whom she wished to consult. She lived without any social relations with her fellow men, and refused to receive President Roosevelt, when the latter visited San Jose.—Western Story Magazine.

CONG. LANGLEY IS SENTENCED

GETS 2 YEARS IN ATLANTA FEDERAL PRISON FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS

(By United Press)
Covington, Ky., May 13. — Congressman J. W. Langley was sentenced to two years in Atlanta federal penitentiary today in court here on charges of violating the liquor laws on which he was convicted last night. Motion for a new trial was denied.

Milton Lipschutz, M. E. Huth of Alliance, Ohio, and Walter B. Carey of Canton also were given two years each.

Langley and Lipschutz were convicted last night. Huth and Carey pleaded guilty during the early part of the trial.

A. F. Slater, over whose guilt the jury split, will face second trial in October.

U GIRLS, PLAYING IN BEGGING ROLES, RUN INTO FACULTY SNAG

St. Paul, May 13.—Members of Skin and Bones, an organization of society girls at the university, ran into trouble with the faculty yesterday.

They were begging at the campus entrance with tin cups and the plea, "Give a Penny to Keep Skin and Bones Together." Along came Prof. C. M. Elmer of the sociology department, prominent Minneapolis social worker.

"Where are your begging permits from the police?" was his first question.

"What will be your defense if you're arrested for vagrancy?" was another.

Then he told them of cases of beggars brought to court, some of them jailed even though their families were in real need, and told them they would be better occupied "at their sorority houses, baking bread for those who are actually forced to the streets by need."

"You girls," he said, "should have better taste than to make a travesty of such a serious problem."

It was reported later in the morning that the beggars had vanished.

St. Paul, May 13. — Minnesota poultrymen will be asked to contribute a sum of $200 to pay for the shipping of American poultry by United States poultry interests to Barcelona, Spain, for the World's Poultry Congress there this month.

N. E. Chapman, poultry specialist of the extension division, University Farm, St. Paul, has been commissioned to raise the money in Minnesota. He will call on the poultry associations of the state for contributions.

The exhibit was prepared by the federal government and is to be sent abroad at the expense of the poultry interests of several states, in part to aid in bringing the next meeting of the congress to the United States.

Ten Thousand Attended Huge Wedding Feast

(By United Press)
Vienna, May 13.—The marriage of the 15-year-old daughter of Rabbi Teitelbaum, with the equally famous Rabbi Halberstamm of Gorlice, celebrated in the town of Marmaros-Sziget, in Northern Roumania, inspired a wedding feast of Homeric proportions, for which were sacrificed 32 oxen, 210 sheep, 160 calves, 2,100 geese and 3,000 chickens. Two carloads of liquid refreshments washed these down.

About 10,000 Jews from Russia, Poland and Austria appeared as guests, including seventy-five rabbis. Gifts to the happy couple were worth several thousand pounds. The ceremonies lasted a week, beginning with big dinners for the poor.

Wage Increase Asked

St. Paul, May 13.—About 10,000 employees of northwest carriers will be affected by the decision of the clerks to request a 12.6 per cent advance in wages, railroad officials said today.

The Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees have announced their intention of notifying the railroad companies of their intention to demand a raise in pay.

Local rail officials have not yet received the formal notice of this demand, but expect it next week.

Dr. Jeremiah Zimmerman, of Syracuse, N. Y., is shown here with his highly prized edition of the Bible. NEIGHBORS

When Elmer Warden bought the place
Across the road from mine,
I didn't like his beaming face
And manner quite benign.

I said that one who had a smile
For all he chanced to meet
Undoubtedly was full of guile,
And practicing deceit.

I didn't give my sanction when
He spoke of changing work;
I thought, "These over-cheerful men are pretty apt to shirk."

But when typhoid had brought me low
Upon a bed of pain,
I saw this neighbor come and go
Each day through sun and rain.

He did his chores, and shucked my corn,
And sat with me at night,
And drove away my thoughts forlorn
With manner gay and bright.

That first impressions often lead
Us wrong, we must agree,
For Elmer Warden, I concede,
Was what he seemed to be.

WORSHIP

Singing, singing, singing
The work and care away,
Singing, always singing,
From dawn till dark of day.

A song in the heart at twilight
For the long day's work that's done,
A song on the lips at dawning
For the labor just begun.

Oh, love of man and children,
And love of the daily toil,
Love of the homely farm house,
Of the fertile, yielding soil.

The birds in the meadow carol
A tuneful roundelay,
And I, by the kitchen window,
Praise God in song each day.
—Margaret W. Jackson in Farm Life

N. C. Converts Swamps Into Rich Farms

(By United Press)
Bethaven, N. C., May 13.—Possibility that the State Legislature will be brought here during its next session for members to see the remarkable improvement wrought by converting swamps into farm lands is being expressed by members from this section.

These scions believe that if their colleagues can see the 200,000 acres of farm lands, now on the tax books at from $150 to $200 an acre and producing corn 12 feet high, which once was sold for a few cents an acre, less trouble would be had in getting through other drainage projects.

A total of 1,000,000 acres has been drained by the state with 2,370,000 now under process of being drained.

PROTECT THE ROBINS TO SAVE COTTON

(By United Press)
Falling Creek, N. C., May 13. — Farmers in this section, anticipating their aid in fighting the boll weevil this summer are making plans to protect robins, which are coming here in greater numbers this spring than ever before. Growers will keep game wardens informed of violations of the laws forbidding shooting of the red-breasts by hunters. Already, under the report plan, twenty-five convictions have been obtained in Wayne County alone.

HEAD COLDS ENDED BY HEALING CREAM

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed because of nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure, antiseptic cream into your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing and healing swollen, inflamed membranes and you get instant relief.

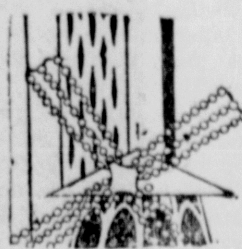

Try this. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Your clogged nostrils open right up; your head is clear; no more hawking or snuffling. Count fifty. All the stuffiness, dryness, struggling for breath is gone. You feel fine.—Add

GLAD TO HAVE MR. COLLISON COME

THE publicity and conventions committee of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce has received a letter conveying the regrets of Charles P. Collison, agricultural editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, who was unable to attend the "Better Sires Day" celebration here.

He writes in part: "I am mighty sorry to have been obliged to decline your invitation to attend your better sires celebration. As you know, this is exactly the kind of enterprise the Tribune is trying to encourage. We are particularly trying to interest and arouse business men to get them to do things for promoting agriculture."

"Next time, please keep me posted a little earlier, so that we can plan ahead to be on the ground whenever the bull is shot. We believe in 'shooting the bull,' the scrub bull, on sight, and will help you in any way to do it."

"Stage a little celebration some time, and I will come up and give you folks my lecture, 'Golden Butter and Golden Dollars,' and write up your agricultural features at the same time."

Mr. Collison's kind offer will be brought before the Chamber of Commerce and arrangements may soon be made to have him visit us. Now that the program for improvement of dairy herds has been set in motion by the Chamber of Commerce, additional momentum will be acquired by such an address as Mr. Collison delivers.

On the very date of Brainerd's celebration, Mr. Collison had been dated to speak in Madison Lake and a crowd of farmers and business men of Blue Earth county heard him.

Mr. Collison pointed out a hopeful view for agriculture along what he called the "cow-path." He showed how prosperous the communities are wherever the cow-paths are numerous, and farmers have gone into dairying and diversified farming, as compared with those where wheat raising predominates.

Dr. R. A. Beise, a Chamber of Commerce director in our city, has offered the suggestion that the Chamber celebrate the first doing away of a scrub bull by having a "bologna bull" dinner. T. H. Schaefer, our local meat market man, says that is the ultimate fate of every scrub bull, to land in the sausage machine. Such a dinner would be one of peculiar satisfaction, the Chamber in one movement satisfying the inner man and improving the dairy situation.

As previously stated by the Dispatch, the Chamber of Commerce, in its inauguration of "Better Sires Day" has started a movement which knows no end, which will build up our dairy section until the cream checks flow in volume equalling a shop pay day, and as to publicity, the "Brainerd Plan" will become world famous. The Chamber, backed by the business and professional men of Brainerd, certainly started something which will leave the whole agricultural and dairy situation of the Northwest and influence other dairy sections of the United States.

BOLSHEVISTS IN DOWNING STREET

THE London Times published an article headed "The Bolsheviks in Downing Street." It makes interesting reading as showing the British viewpoint on the subject of the visitation of the committee from Soviet Russia.

"They sat in conference in the Prime Minister's room at the Foreign Office," says the Times, "and they were entertained at luncheon in No. 10. It would be idle to pretend that this spectacle is regarded with enthusiasm in wide circles in this country."

"The Soviet delegates had only just reached London when the news came that several intelligent Russians had been condemned to death in Kieff for the sole reason that they had declared their belief in freedom of speech and assembly and all the principles of democratic government. Only yesterday we described in our columns the plight of an eminent Roman Catholic dignitary, Archbishop Cieplak. He was liberated from the torturing round of the Lyubianka and Butyrki prisons, he was pitchedforked emaciated and penniless over the frontier, and having with difficulty made his way to Riga, he groped painfully for a refuge, until at last he was recognized."

"These recent episodes remind the British public afresh of the methods practised by the Soviet authorities in their administration of Russia. Repugnance to such methods lies deep in the British mind, and though for a little while the issue may be clouded by plausible argument and calculated misrepresentation, British opinion, once brought into close contact with Bolshevik ideas, cannot regard them with complacency."

"The delegation has been received in Downing street. The British government are making an attempt, through detailed consultation with its members, to re-establish normal relations between two great countries. The millions of Russia and her vast territories still somehow exist in this changed and troubled world. Our Government is trying to recover direct contact with Russia through representatives of the power that holds Russia in its grasp. It is a hazardous attempt. It is like trying to penetrate the mysteries of another shadowy world."

INTERNATIONAL ROMANCE SHATTERED

ANOTHER international romance has been shattered and the bride has gone home to her parents while the bridegroom seems to be contented by receiving a money consideration. The lovely and fascinating Millicent Rogers, heiress to $40,000,000, has returned to America with her father, while her husband count, with a long string of names attached to his title, has gone back to Vienna, consoled with some $100,000 which Col. Rogers is reported giving him.

It hurts the average American to have one of our girls have her romance shattered like this by some European. Here in America we have thousands of worthy aspirants who make better husbands than any imported counts. They may not have the evanescent polish of a European, but deep down in their hearts they are square fellows and treat a woman square.

To show how deeply the separation has hit the count aforesaid, he and his brother are preparing to play in Austria's Davis cup team which plays Switzerland at Vienna on May 17.

CRUEL CENSORSHIP
OF 700 YEARS AGO

Romantic Age of 13th Century Duplicated Today.

Censorship 700 years ago consisted of calling out the army and "mopping up" everybody and everything offensive to the ruling puritanical minds," according to Prof. Nellie S. Aurner of the English department, University of Iowa.

"From about the middle of the Twelfth century to early in the Thirteenth, sheiks and Sahara Sarabhs were having their heyday in the romantic sex literature of southern France and 'black oxen' roamed wild through Provence," says Professor Aurner. "Troubadour poetry reflected the spirit of the times."

"So romantic had the people of this region become that they put loyalty in one's liege lady above everything else, even the church and state."

"This smacked too much of the heretical to suit those in power. The Albigensian crusade of 1209 was begun to correct the situation. Southern France saw so much bloodshed and brutality people sickened of the affair. Troubadour poetry and all its kind went into a decline. When the smoke lifted the censors had won, but the idea carried over in the stories that grew up about King Arthur and the knights of the Round Table."

"The present school of sentimental literature is a recrudescence, with important differences, of the thought of the earlier period. The church in both instances has disapproved of any departure from the puritanical style which characterized the accepted school of both ages."

"No one style is suitable to the flexible demands of the modern world, with its varying phases of highly complex civilization. In spite of the fact that there is much that is crude and disgusting in our present literature the best of it points to something finer and richer."

Donkeys Came First

There is no more striking phenomenon to those intimately familiar with Chinese life than the indifference of the great mass of country folk, small town and village people, to what happens in government circles at Peking. I had an experience of this on a shooting trip in the lake country west of Shanghai in 1908. It has always been my habit when in the country to engage in conversation with the Chinese met in the fields or on the highways. On this occasion I fell in with a well-dressed villager, evidently a merchant, walking on a bypath through the rice fields. The Emperor Kuang Hsu had just died at Peking, and there was some rumor reflecting on the empress dowager in this connection. I asked this Chinese wayfarer if he had heard of it. "Oh, yes," he said, "I heard of it that day I went to the city to sell the donkeys." "Well; what will we do now without an emperor?" I queried. "We shall soon have another one," he said, "but it will have no effect on the price of donkeys." And so the two events from his point of view and that of myriads of his countrymen, were properly co-ordinated. The death of his emperor at Peking under suspicious circumstances was not of as much interest as the market for donkeys on the adjacent plains.—North American Review.

The Greatest Country

The American statesman was introduced to the Scot as "one of the leading politicians of modern times and the greatest authority upon international law that the world has ever known."

The Scot looked him up and down for a moment, and then asked:

"From what land d'ye come?"

"From the greatest country in the world," replied the statesman, with a smile.

The Scot shook his head.

"Puir bairn, puir bairn!" he sighed.

"Ye've lost yer Scottish accent."

Pulverized Coal Being Tried

Railroads in Australia are experimenting with pulverized coal for their locomotives. Engines have been equipped with special devices and the first trials have proved quite satisfactory. A soft brown coal is used and by pulverizing it this fuel will develop heat in greater quantities than when burned in its natural state, and like-wise a tender can carry more and the waste will be less.

Disgrace

"That youngest boy of yours does not seem to do you credit, Uncle Moses," remarked the minister to one of his negro parishioners.

"No, sah; no, sah," replied the old man sorrowfully. "He is the worstest chile I ever had. He is mighty bad. Fact, he's de whitest sheep de fam'ly, sah."

His Strong Point

"Good gracious!" said the visitor bachelor, "does your baby always cry that way?"

"Oh, dear, no!" responded his host. "He has quite an extensive repertoire. This is only one of his lighter performances. He reserves his heavy work for two o'clock in the morning."—Yorkshire Post.

FARM POULTRY

FOUNDATION STOCK OF
FUTURE EGG LAYERS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The buying of baby chicks is a far more important problem than most purchasers realize. Baby chicks constitute the foundation stock of the future layers and breeders and, therefore, too much care cannot be exercised in deciding upon the hatchery from which to buy.

Officials of the United States Department of Agriculture have observed that practical poultry raisers and farmers are relying upon the hatcheries more and more each succeeding year as a source of supply for their new crop of chicks. In other words, each year sees fewer and fewer chicks hatched under hens and the mammoth hatcheries are taking the place, to a certain extent, of the smaller incubators which are commonly operated on the farms. It is because of the fact that farmers are buying baby chicks from the commercial hatcheries in such large numbers that the officials of the department feel the necessity of urging them to exercise great care in deciding upon where to buy this year's supply of chicks.

At the same time it should be pointed out that many farmers, perhaps the majority, will still find it more economical to do their own hatching. This is especially the case where the farm flock is of good standard quality and has been bred for egg production. A farmer hatching his own chicks knows the quality of chicks he can expect.

The commercial hatchery business has developed to a very remarkable extent in the United States in the last two years. Some of the hatchery men have estimated that practically double the number of baby chicks will be hatched in mammoth hatcheries this year compared with last. There is a great increase in the number of hatcheries, each varying in capacity from a few thousand to several hundred thousand chicks.

The question of importance to a purchaser of baby chicks is the source of supply of eggs for the hatcheries. Many of the hatcheries have their own business well organized, and are able to guarantee the quality of the chicks. Some of the hatcheries, however, are not so particular where they purchase the eggs they use and are not able to guarantee high-quality chicks.

Purchasers of baby chicks would be well advised, officials of the department say, to make sure of purchasing from a reliable hatchery. Only pure bred chicks should be bought, and in addition to this, the purchaser should insist upon a satisfactory statement from the hatchery man as to the quality of eggs used. Were the eggs from a standard-bred flock with trap-nest records and was the flock in good breeding condition? Purchase baby chicks with great care. It is better to pay a few cents more for good quality chicks that can be guaranteed.

High Value of Milk for Increasing Yield of Eggs

Milk fed to laying hens brings better returns than when fed to hogs, according to Purdue university. Returns at that station show that the increase in egg production gives a return of $1.82 to $5 per hundred pounds of milk fed to hens. Feeding of protein to hens will usually increase the egg production of a hen about 100 eggs per year as compared to hens that do not receive a protein supplement.

Milk cannot be compared with other forms of animal protein such as meat scraps and tankage wholly on the protein basis, since its palatability, ease of digestibility, and general availability on the farm must be given consideration.

For chicks, milk is almost a necessity since most people can raise chicks easier and better and with less mortality when given as a liquid diet.

Poultry Notes

The wise poultry raiser knows that early hatching catches the best profits.

Young goslings should be kept out of the sun on hot days or they will suffer from the heat.

Gather eggs to be set often and keep them in a cool, dustless place, turning them twice daily.

The best cure for a hen with the egg-eating habit is to give her a dose of iron—applied just back of the ears.

You can count your chickens before they hatch if you observe carefully the correct principles of egg selection and incubation.

Milk is a very valuable feed for baby chicks, since it contains the vitamins so essential to growth and also protein required in a ration.

The thermometer used in the incubator should be tested to determine whether or not it is recording the temperature accurately.

The more ventilation allowed the more the egg evaporates. Skill in running the incubator consists in balancing these two factors so the eggs do not smother or dry out.

Boy Phone Operators

Prono to Profanity

It is hard for the present generation to imagine a swearing telephone operator, but Miss Mary Beatrice Kennedy, New York's first woman exchange operator, says she got her job because the company was tired of firing its swearing boy operators.

In those days subscribers used to come down to the telephone office to fight the operators who had sworn at them and the company became so tired of the numerous complaints that it finally replaced the boys with young women.

Miss Kennedy recently celebrated her forty-fifth anniversary, she having entered the service in 1878. "In those days," she says, "subscribers had the habit of calling up for all sorts of information. They used to ask: 'How much are eggs selling for?'"

"Calling a number was unheard of. Subscribers would simply ask for Smith's drug store or Jones' grocery, or this or that building, or such and such a lawyer or merchant. I used to work from eight in the morning until six at night. I lived in Jersey City. To get to work I took a horse car to the river, ferried across, took another horse car and then walked up six flights of stairs. It is different now, isn't it?"

Sage Rats of Hawaii

Become Coffee Addicts

Thousands and perhaps millions of sage rats in the Kona district of the Hawaiian islands have become coffee toppers. They subsist wholly upon the ripe coffee berries and cause big losses to the growers annually, it is stated. Although the rats make coffee their sole diet the rodents do not seem to be any the worse off by reason thereof, so far as their physical condition is concerned. They are sleek and fat and scamper about with an undue playfulness, their unusual activity being due to the stimulating character of the food, it is supposed.

Coffee growers have so far been unable to cope with the rat pest. The little animals swarm into the bushes when the berries begin to turn and eat and destroy enormous quantities of the product, it is asserted.

It was not until some time after the growing of coffee in the Kona district was started that the sage rats learned to like the taste of the berries. Gradually the addicts increased until now practically every rodent, young and old, will not eat anything else. They even store away large quantities of the ripe berries, in the same manner as squirrels.

The British government are making an attempt, through detailed consultation with its members, to re-establish normal relations between two great countries. The millions of Russia and her vast territories still somehow exist in this changed and troubled world. Our Government is trying to recover direct contact with Russia through representatives of the power that holds Russia in its grasp. It is a hazardous attempt. It is like trying to penetrate the mysteries of another shadowy world."

INTERNATIONAL ROMANCE SHATTERED

ANOTHER international romance has been shattered and the bride has gone home to her parents while the bridegroom seems to be contented by receiving a money consideration. The lovely and fascinating Millicent Rogers, heiress to $40,000,000, has returned to America with her father, while her husband count, with a long string of names attached to his title, has gone back to Vienna, consoled with some $100,000 which Col. Rogers is reported giving him.

It hurts the average American to have one of our girls have her romance shattered like this by some European. Here in America we have thousands of worthy aspirants who make better husbands than any imported counts. They may not have the evanescent polish of a European, but deep down in their hearts they are square fellows and treat a woman square.

To show how deeply the separation has hit the count, he and his brother are preparing to play in Austria's Davis cup team which plays Switzerland at Vienna on May 17.

CRUEL CENSORSHIP OF 700 YEARS AGO

Romantic Age of 13th Century Duplicated Today.

Censorship 700 years ago consisted of calling out the army and "mopping up everybody and everything offensive to the ruling puritanical minds," according to Prof. Nellie S. Aurner of the English department, University of Iowa.

"From about the middle of the Twelfth century to early in the Thirteenth, sheiks and Sahara Sarabs were having their heyday in the romantic sex literature of southern France and 'black oxen' roamed wild through Provence," says Professor Aurner. "Troubadour poetry reflected the spirit of the times."

"So romantic had the people of this region become that they put loyalty in one's liege lady above everything else, even the church and state."

"This smacked too much of the heretical to suit those in power. The Albigensian crusade of 1209 was begun to correct the situation. Southern France saw so much bloodshed and brutality people sickened of the affair. Troubadour poetry and all its kind went into a decline. When the smoke lifted the censors had won, but the idea carried over in the stories that grew up about King Arthur and the knights of the Round Table."

"The present school of sentimental literature is a recrudescence, with important differences, of the thought of the earlier period. The church in both instances has disapproved of any departure from the puritanical style which characterized the accepted school of both ages."

"No one style is suitable to the flexible demands of the modern world, with its varying phases of highly complex civilization. In spite of the fact that there is much that is crude and disgusting in our present literature the best of it points to something finer and richer."

Donkeys Came First

There is no more striking phenomenon to those intimately familiar with Chinese life than the indifference of the great mass of country folk, small town and village people, to what happens in government circles at Peking. I had an experience of this on a shooting trip in the lake country west of Shanghai in 1908. It has always been my habit when in the country to engage in conversation with the Chinese met in the fields or on the highways. On this occasion I fell in with a well-dressed villager, evidently a merchant, walking on a bypath through the rice fields. The Emperor Kuang Hsu had just died at Peking, and there was some rumor reflecting on the empress dowager in this connection. I asked this Chinese wayfarer if he had heard of it. "Oh, yes," he said, "I heard of it that day I went to the city to sell the donkeys." "Well; what will we do now without an emperor?" I queried. "We shall soon have another one," he said, "but it will have no effect on the price of donkeys." And so the two events from his point of view and that of myriads of his countrymen, were properly co-ordinated. The death of his emperor at Peking under suspicious circumstances was not of as much interest as the market for donkeys on the adjacent plains.—North American Review.

The Greatest Country

The American statesman was introduced to the Scot as "one of the leading politicians of modern times and the greatest authority upon international law that the world has ever known."

The Scot looked him up and down for a moment, and then asked:

"From what land d'ye come?"

"From the greatest country in the world," replied the statesman, with a smile.

The Scot shook his head.

"Puir bairn, puir bairn!" he sighed.

"Ye've lost yer Scottish accent."

Pulverized Coal Being Tried

Railroads in Australia are experimenting with pulverized coal for their locomotives. Engines have been equipped with special devices and the first trials have proved quite satisfactory. A soft brown coal is used and by pulverizing it this fuel will develop heat in greater quantities than when burned in its natural state, and likewise a tender can carry more and the waste will be less.

Disgrace

"That youngest boy of yours does not seem to do you credit, Uncle Mose," remarked the minister to one of his negro parishioners.

"No, sah; no, sah," replied the old man sorrowfully. "He is the wurstest chile I ever had. He is mighty bad. Fact, he's de white sheep of de family, sah."

His Strong Point

"Good gracious!" said the visitor bachelor, "does your baby always cry that way?"

"Oh, dear, no!" responded his host. "He has quite an extensive repertoire. This is only one of his lighter performances. He reserves his heavy work for two o'clock in the morning."—Yorkshire Post.

FARM POULTRY

FOUNDATION STOCK OF FUTURE EGG LAYERS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The buying of baby chicks is a far more important problem than most purchasers realize. Baby chicks constitute the foundation stock of the future layers and breeders and, therefore, too much care cannot be exercised in deciding upon the hatchery from which to buy.

Officials of the United States Department of Agriculture have observed that practical poultry raisers and farmers are relying upon the hatcheries more and more each succeeding year as a source of supply for their new crop of chicks. In other words, each year sees fewer and fewer chicks hatched under hens and the mammoth hatcheries are taking the place, to a certain extent, of the smaller incubators which are commonly operated on the farms. It is because of the fact that farmers are buying baby chicks from the commercial hatcheries in such large numbers that the officials of the department feel the necessity of urging them to exercise great care in deciding upon where to buy this year's supply of chicks.

At the same time it should be pointed out that many farmers, perhaps the majority, will still find it more economical to do their own hatching. This is especially the case where the farm flock is of good standard quality and has been bred for egg production. A farmer hatching his own chicks knows the quality of chicks he can expect.

The commercial hatchery business has developed to a very remarkable extent in the United States in the last two years. Some of the hatchery men have estimated that practically double the number of baby chicks will be hatched in mammoth hatcheries this year compared with last. There is a great increase in the number of hatcheries, each varying in capacity from a few thousand to several hundred thousand chicks.

The question of importance to a purchaser of baby chicks is the source of supply of eggs for the hatcheries. Many of the hatcheries have their own business well organized, and are able to guarantee the quality of the chicks. Some of the hatcheries, however, are not so particular where they purchase the eggs they use and are not able to guarantee high-quality chicks.

Purchasers of baby chicks would be well advised, officials of the department say, to make sure of purchasing from a reliable hatchery. Only pure bred chicks should be bought, and in addition to this, the purchaser should insist upon a satisfactory statement from the hatchery man as to the quality of eggs used. Were the eggs from a standard-bred flock with trap-nest records and was the flock in good breeding condition? Purchase baby chicks with great care. It is better to pay a few cents more for good quality chicks that can be guaranteed.

High Value of Milk for Increasing Yield of Eggs

Milk fed to laying hens brings better returns than when fed to hogs, according to Purdue university. Returns at that station show that the increase in egg production gives a return of $1.82 to $5 per hundred pounds of milk fed to hens. Feeding of protein to hens will usually increase the egg production of a hen about 100 eggs per year as compared to hens that do not receive a protein supplement.

Milk cannot be compared with other forms of animal protein such as meat scraps and tankage wholly on the protein basis, since its palatability, ease of digestibility, and general availability on the farm must be given consideration.

For chicks, milk is almost a necessity since most people can raise chicks easier and better and with less mortality when given as a liquid diet.

Poultry Notes

The wise poultry raiser knows that early hatching catches the best profits.

Young goslings should be kept out of the sun on hot days or they will suffer from the heat.

Gather eggs to be set often and keep them in a cool, dustless place, turning them twice daily.

The best cure for a hen with the egg-eating habit is to give her a dose of iron—applied just back of the ears.

You can count your chickens before they hatch if you observe carefully the correct principles of egg selection and incubation.

Milk is a very valuable feed for baby chicks, since it contains the vitamins so essential to growth and also protein required in a ration.

The thermometer used in the incubator should be tested to determine whether or not it is recording the temperature accurately.

The more ventilation allowed the more the egg evaporates. Skill in running the incubator consists in balancing these two factors so the eggs do not smother or dry out.

Boy Phone Operators

Prono to Profanity

It is hard for the present generation to imagine a swearing telephone operator, but Miss Mary Beatrice Kennedy, New York's first woman exchange operator, says she got her job because the company was tired of firing its swearing boy operators.

In those days subscribers used to come down to the telephone office to fight the operators who had sworn at them and the company became so tired of the numerous complaints that it finally replaced the boys with young women.

Miss Kennedy recently celebrated her forty-fifth anniversary, she having entered the service in 1878. "In those days," she says, "subscribers had the habit of calling up for all sorts of information. They used to ask: 'How much are eggs selling for?'"

"Calling a number was unheard of. Subscribers would simply ask for Smith's drug store or Jones' grocery, or this or that building, or such and such a lawyer or merchant. I used to work from eight in the morning until six at night. I lived in Jersey City. To get to work I took a horse car to the river, ferried across, took another horse car and then walked up six flights of stairs. It is different now, isn't it?"

Sage Rats of Hawaii

Become Coffee Addicts

Thousands and perhaps millions of sage rats in the Kona district of the Hawaiian islands have become coffee toppers. They subsist wholly upon the ripe coffee berries and cause big losses to the growers annually, it is stated. Although the rats make coffee their sole diet the rodents do not seem to be any the worse off by reason thereof, so far as their physical condition is concerned. They are sleek and fat and scurper about with an undue playfulness, their unusual activity being due to the stimulating character of the food, it is supposed.

Coffee growers have so far been unable to cope with the rat pest. The little animals swarm into the bushes when the berries begin to turn and eat and destroy enormous quantities of the product, it is asserted.

It was not until some time after the growing of coffee in the Kona district was started that the sage rats learned to like the taste of the berries. Gradually the addicts increased until now practically every rodent, young and old, will not eat anything else. They even store away large quantities of the ripe berries, in the same manner as squirrels.

Gorilla Not Ferocious

Apparently the gorilla has been a much maligned beast. The old stories of his ferocity must have been all wrong, for now we are told on what seems to be indubitable authority that these biggest of apes are most sensitive creatures, and that the difficulty hitherto experienced in keeping them alive when captives was due to failure to treat them with the delicate consideration, without which they soon die of broken hearts.

What they really want is to be loved. Without that they fall into a lethargy of despair that passes for stupidity, but when the recipients of tender and delicate attentions they reveal the intelligence to be expected of man's nearest relations.

As Dr. Hornaday countenances these new characteristics of the gorilla nature, they cannot be ascribed to the ingenuity of overzealous press agents, as they are tempted to suspect who rather enjoyed—when at a safe distance—bearing about gun barrels broken over hairy arms, the threatening clash of monstrous teeth in preparation for attacks on lions and the beating of resonant breasts in the working of murderous rage.

But perhaps gorillas have changed and deteriorated since Du Chailu's day. That bold traveler and fine writer did not see them as pretty pets for ladies or as sufferers from any angioneuroses.—New York Times.

Rhinceros Can Scent
Enemy Two Miles Off

Many animals give off scent through their feet. The bloodhound can "scent" his object many hours after it has passed.

Scent depends a great deal on atmospheric condition; on a sharp, dry day it does not "lay." On a muggy, still day, however, even human beings will scent a fox, as their odor sticks to surrounding objects, such as bushes and hedges.

Elephants have a wonderful sense of smell, either from breath or body, but the keenest-scented animal is undoubtedly the rhinceros. One big game hunter has stated that in favorable conditions this animal can "wind" a man for two miles. This may be considered a tall order, but in Africa the atmosphere is wonderfully clear.

What is the explanation of dogs and cats finding their way back to their original homes after being taken many miles away? The explanation is believed to be "ether." Scent is conveyed to animals "on the wind" by this means.—Exchange.

April Fool

Many attempts have been made to account for "All Fool's day" or "April Fool day." The most satisfactory explanation seems to be as follows: Before the English changed their calendar in 1752 the legal year began March 25 instead of January 1. Most all of the feast days and festivals were originally celebrated eight days. April 1 was the octave or eighth day after New Year's day, March 25. It was therefore the day on which the New Year festivals reached the highest point and ended. The Roman festival known as the "Feast of Fools" on February 17 may have influenced April Fool, because on that day the Romans also played tricks and practical jokes. The Hindus have a spring festival on March 31. Some have tried to connect "All Fool's day" with the mock trial of Christ, but the connection is probably only imaginary.

Playtime Important

It is only for the sake of the free life that material competence and knowledge of fact are worth attaining. Facts for a living creature are only instruments; his play-life is his true life. On his working days, when he is attentive to matter, he is only his own servant, preparing the feast. He becomes his own master in his holidays and in his sportive passions. Among these must be counted literature and philosophy, and so much of love, religion and patriotism as is not an effort to survive materially. In such enthusiasms there is much asseveration; but what they attest is really not the character of the external facts concerned, but only the spiritual uses to which the spirit turns them.—G. Santayana in Yale Review.

Sheep in America

Sheep were unknown in the domesticated state in America until after the Spanish conquest. The beginning of the sheep industry in the New World dates back to the time of Cortez and his conquest of Mexico in the early part of the sixteenth century. Nearly all Mexican sheep can be traced to early Castile breeds. This is also the source of the early sheep in the western part of the United States. It is believed that the English colonists first brought sheep to Virginia in 1609. Originally all sheep probably came from Asia, but American breeds all sprang from stock imported from Europe.

When Forks Were New

The present-day fork, with its four prongs, was not developed until after 1725, and as late as the period of George III the wife of a gentleman in waiting to the king, about 1788, wrote that silver forks were used only by the nobility and foreign ambassadors, and that, since they had but three prongs, the knives were made broad-ended, so that one might use them to eat peas and catch fruit juices. It seems that the use of the dessert spoon was unknown at that time.

Fair Warning

She was a dainty young thing, dressed in the latest fashion, and as she tripped up the stairs the office boy gasped, then grinned, as she came to a standstill before him.

"Yes, miss?" he asked, rather impudently.

"Could you tell me if Mr. Jenks is in?" she asked.

The boy nodded and pointed vaguely over his shoulder at the open door.

The girl hesitated for a moment.

"Do you know if he is engaged?" she inquired.

The boy looked astonished.

"Engaged?" he almost shouted.

"Engaged! Why, he's married and got two kids!"—Pittsburgh Post.

Apparently the gorilla has been a much maligned beast. The old stories of his ferocity must have been all wrong, for now we are told on what seems to be indubitable authority that these biggest of apes are most sensitive creatures, and that the difficulty hitherto experienced in keeping them alive when captives was due to failure to treat them with the delicate consideration, without which they soon die of broken hearts.

What they really want is to be loved. Without that they fall into a lethargy of despair that passes for stupidity, but when the recipients of tender and delicate attentions they reveal the intelligence to be expected of man's nearest relations.

As Dr. Hornaday countenances these new characteristics of the gorilla nature, they cannot be ascribed to the ingenuity of overzealous press agents, as they are tempted to suspect who rather enjoyed—when at a safe distance—bearing about gun barrels broken over hairy arms, the threatening clash of monstrous teeth in preparation for attacks on lions and the beating of resonant breasts in the working of murderous rage.

But perhaps gorillas have changed and deteriorated since Du Chailu's day. That bold traveler and fine writer did not see them as pretty pets for ladies or as sufferers from any angioneuroses.—New York Times.

Rhinos Can Scent
Enemy Two Miles Off

Many animals give off scent through their feet. The bloodhound can "scent" his object many hours after it has passed.

Scent depends a great deal on atmospheric condition; on a sharp, dry day it does not "lay." On a muggy, still day, however, even human beings will scent a fox, as their odor sticks to surrounding objects, such as bushes and hedges.

Elephants have a wonderful sense of smell, either from breath or body, but the keenest-scented animal is undoubtedly the rhinoceros. One big game hunter has stated that in favorable conditions this animal can "wind" a man for two miles. This may be considered a tall order, but in Africa the atmosphere is wonderfully clear.

What is the explanation of dogs and cats finding their way back to their original homes after being taken many miles away? The explanation is believed to be "ether." Scent is conveyed to animals "on the wind" by this means.—Exchange.

April Fool

Many attempts have been made to account for "All Fool's day" or "April Fool day." The most satisfactory explanation seems to be as follows: Before the English changed their calendar in 1752 the legal year began March 25 instead of January 1. Most all of the feast days and festivals were originally celebrated eight days. April 1 was the octave or eighth day after New Year's day, March 25. It was therefore the day on which the New Year festivals reached the highest point and ended. The Roman festival known as the "Feast of Fools" on February 17 may have influenced April Fool, because on that day the Romans also played tricks and practical jokes. The Hindus have a spring festival on March 31. Some have tried to connect "All Fool's day" with the mock trial of Christ, but the connection is probably only imaginary.

Playtime Important

It is only for the sake of the free life that material competence and knowledge of fact are worth attaining. Facts for a living creature are only instruments; his play-life is his true life. On his working days, when he is attentive to matter, he is only his own servant, preparing the feast. He becomes his own master in his holidays and in his sportive passions. Among these must be counted literature and philosophy, and so much of love, religion and patriotism as is not an effort to survive materially. In such enthusiasms there is much as severation; but what they attest is really not the character of the external facts concerned, but only the spiritual uses to which the spirit turns them.—G. Santayana in Yale Review.

Sheep in America

Sheep were unknown in the domesticated state in America until after the Spanish conquest. The beginning of the sheep industry in the New World dates back to the time of Cortez and his conquest of Mexico in the early part of the sixteenth century. Nearly all Mexican sheep can be traced to early Castile breeds. This is also the source of the early sheep in the western part of the United States. It is believed that the English colonists first brought sheep to Virginia in 1609. Originally all sheep probably came from Asia, but American breeds all sprang from stock imported from Europe.

When Forks Were New

The present-day fork, with its four prongs, was not developed until after 1723, and as late as the period of George III the wife of a gentleman in waiting to the king, about 1783, wrote that silver forks were used only by the nobility and foreign ambassadors, and that, since they had but three prongs, the knives were made broad-ended, so that one might use them to eat peas and catch fruit juices. It seems that the use of the dessert spoon was unknown at that time.

Fair Warning

She was a dainty young thing, dressed in the latest fashion, and as she tripped up the stairs the office boy gasped, then grinned, as she came to a standstill before him.

"Yes, miss?" he asked, rather impudently.

"Could you tell me if Mr. Jenks is in?" she asked.

The boy nodded and pointed vaguely over his shoulder at the open door.

The girl hesitated for a moment. "Do you know if he is engaged?" she inquired.

The boy looked astonished.

"Engaged?" he almost shouted. "Engaged! Why, he's married and got two kids!"—Pittsburgh Post.

Samoan Women Happy and Not Overworked

The life of a Samoan woman is pleasant. She is neither overworked nor savagely treated, says Edward A. Salisbury, in Adventure Magazine. From her earliest childhood she is trained in the intricacies of the siva-siva, and all her life the dance is a source of pleasure to her.

Samoan women will always dance for you if you ask them, and they show by their smiles and songs how much they delight in granting the request. In their girlhood they deck themselves with flowers and garlands of leaves and are fond of coquetry, but, unlike their Polynesian sisters of the Marquesas and Society Islands, they are chaste.

Before the coming of the Americans with new medical theories, the life of an infant was doubtful, and even now the old customs are carried out in some villages, it is said. The new-born child was laid on its back and three flat stones were laid around the head. To make the baby beautiful the family thought it was necessary to flatten the forehead and nose. Nothing is uglier, they feel, than our hideous, pointed "canoe noses." The baby was fed with filtered coconut juice for three days, while a "wise woman" tested the mother's milk. Often the child died.

Spices in Demand in Early Days of History

The tantalizing flavor and piquant qualities of spices have made them sought after from the earliest days of mankind, and an adjunct to civilization at all periods.

In the early days of history spices were worth fabulous sums, owing to the difficulty of obtaining them and the high cost of transportation.

When Alaric the Goth conquered Rome in 410 A. D., says the New York World, he asked as a ransom 3,000 pounds of pepper, then worth more than its weight in gold.

The first organization of dealers, it is said, was the "fraternity of peppers," and it was in the Fourteenth century that the name was changed to the "guild of grocers," which depicted on its coat of arms six cloves.

Venice at its height traded in spices to the amount of $10,000,000 annually, and it vied with Portugal in securing cargoes from far eastern ports. Columbus was bound for the spices of the East when he chanced upon a new continent, and Vasco da Gama, the famous sea fighter, made one of his most important voyages to secure a cargo of pepper, cinnamon and ginger from India.

Light and Dark Stars

Two hundred millions of millions of miles away is a star called Algol. It is the second brightest star in the constellation of Perseus and it has the curious habit of varying in brightness at regular intervals.

After much research we know now that Algol consists of two stars—one bright, the other dark, says London Tit-Bits. They are each about a million miles in diameter and about two million miles apart. They revolve around one another and when the dark star is between us and the bright one the light we receive from the latter diminishes.

There are several other stars of the Algol type, and it is simply through our researches that we are aware that there exist in the heavens dark stars—stars which give no light at all and are in themselves totally invisible.

How many there may be we do not know, for it is only by their eclipsing bright stars that we can recognize them at all.

Get Loans From "Aunt"

In Paris and other big French cities the pawnbroker is called "my aunt." In France one needn't blush in doing business with the pawnbroker, for he is the state; that is, the government conducts the pawnbroking business. It does it very well, too, if I am to believe the testimony of some Americans who have "traded" with "My Aunt" while awaiting delayed remittances from home. "My Aunt" has had a good year's business. She does little business nowadays with the working-man, for he is always in work. The center of poverty has moved. It is the white-collar brigade which, unable to make both ends meet, resorts to "My Aunt." Oddly enough, "My Aunt's" shop in Paris is on "the Hill of Piety." Not a misprint for pity.—A. B. L., in World Traveler Magazine.

Franklin's Thrift

We hear a great deal of Benjamin Franklin as the great exponent of thrift, remarks the Kansas City Star. Historians recall, however, that the great scientist-statesman was not always thrifty enough. In his refusal to patent his famous stove, he was wasteful of his own and the public's profit. He wished his idea to be given free to the world, and so did not protect his invention; an Englishman made some changes for the worse in the Franklin fireplace, secured a patent on it, and reaped a fortune from the sales.

Fear Alligator's Tail

In several of the southern states alligator farms are maintained for the purpose of using the hides for shoes and other leather articles. It is said that the keepers of these creatures are more in fear of their tails than their teeth. When attacking an enemy an alligator will try to strike first with its powerful tail before using its cruel teeth.

POULTRY FACTS

PROPER METHODS FOR PREPARING POULTRY

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A broad field for specialization by farmers in producing table poultry of prime quality is felt to exist by the United States Department of Agriculture. Most poultry, says the department, is shipped alive by producers because producers are not skilled in dressing and are not equipped to handle and ship the dressed poultry in good condition over long distances.

Shippers of dressed poultry will find it profitable as a rule to fatten the birds for a period of ten to fourteen days before killing, the department says. Requirements of the market to which the poultry are sent should determine whether the birds should be scalded or dry picked, and also the style of dressing. It is extremely important that the birds be well bled and thoroughly chilled immediately after slaughter, to remove all body heat.

Failure to chill properly is often responsible for spoilage. In warm weather dressed poultry should be shipped packed in ice to prevent spoilage in transit. Grading for quality, uniformity, and size is desirable.

Shipping of poor quality birds in separate packages is also desirable when the quantity to be shipped is sufficiently large to make this step practicable, the department says.

It probably will not pay to fatten poultry that is in fairly good condition of flesh, before shipping them alive, because the shrinkage in weight of specially fattened poultry is likely to be heavy during the journey to market, the department points out. But if the poultry is very thin it will probably pay to fatten the birds for a few days or a week.

In shipping alive, producers are urged to grade the birds by age and kind, and so far as practicable to ship the different classes in separate coops. Overcrowding in coops, especially during hot weather, causes heavy loss. Feed should be withheld from the poultry a sufficient length of time before shipping, to insure arrival of the birds on the market with empty crops.

In shipping either live or dressed poultry, the department emphasizes the importance of determining the best days of the week for poultry on the market selected, and the planning of shipments to arrive on those days. Care should always be taken that coops or containers in which poultry is shipped are plainly marked with the name and address of both the receiver and shipper.

Further detailed information as to the proper methods of killing, picking, chilling, packing and shipping poultry applicable to the use of producers, as well as brief descriptions of commercial methods, are given in Farmers' Bulletin 1377, entitled "Marketing Poultry," copies of which can be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, upon request of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Satisfactory House for Ducks Is Easily Built

The essentials of a satisfactory duck house are a good, tight roof, tight sides and back, and ample ventilation. A very good type is a simple shed-roof house, four feet high at the back and seven at the front, ten or twelve feet wide and whatever length the size of the flock would require. Provide a raised floor covered with sand, and kept liberally covered with litter. As for materials build the framework of dimension stuff, and if strict economy in first cost is essential, cover the entire building, roof and sides, with prepared roofing. Leave in the front a door, and windows the full length of the house. Half the windows should be glass, and the other half protected with burlap or muslin to keep out drafts and rain or snow, but allow for ventilation. The windows should all be arranged so that ventilation may be increased or diminished as the need changes with weather conditions.

Give Chickens Free Run Whenever It Is Possible

It is better to fence the garden so that the chickens cannot get into it than it is to fence them in close quarters to prevent them from eating the crop. What is true with the garden is true with all crops that might be injured by the birds. Fence such crops in, and let the chickens range whenever possible. Birds need green feed and exercise if they are to stay healthy. Continual use of a single run for chickens causes the ground to become "fowl-sick" and heavily infested with parasite eggs.

Vermin Worry Broody Hen

A common trouble in natural incubation is lice. Most hens carry a few lice upon them all the time. In the active hen the number of lice upon her do not increase rapidly, but in a sluggish, broody hen multiplication of lice increases very rapidly. To check this the bird must be dusted with sodium fluoride, or a good louse powder before she is placed upon the hatching eggs, at least once during the hatching period, and again just before the chicks hatch.

Help Milk Yield by Using Better Stock

Big Increase in Production in Delaware Community.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An increase of over 1,300,000 gallons in the annual milk production of New Castle county, Delaware, without increasing the number of dairy cows owned, has followed five years' dairy improvement work, in which the county agent, progressive dairy farmers, and agricultural organizations co-operated. This county is located near a large city, affording a good market for whole milk, and dairying is an important farm industry.

When extension work in dairying was begun in New Castle county, many farmers were in the habit of buying a medium type of grade cow without a guaranty of health. Following a county meeting of dairymen in 1918, four carloads of pure bred cows from herds under federal supervision for tuberculosis control were brought in and distributed as far as possible at the rate of one to a farm, so that as many farmers as possible might learn for themselves whether or not the investment paid. The boys and girls on the farms became interested, were organized into a club, and a pure bred calf secured by each member. New clubs have been organized each year following, and exhibits of club members' stock are a feature of district shows and the state fair.

Club members have produced about one-fifth of the present holdings of pure bred stock in the county. Pure bred bulls and cows have been purchased by many farmers, after the movement was begun, on their own initiative. There are now about 900 pure bred dairy cattle in the county, while in 1915 there were only 350. A carefully worked-out ration is fed.

Cautious Farmer Boosts Use of Pure Bred Sires

Striking evidence that live stock improvement by the use of pure bred sires is one of the most conservative and safe methods is related by an official of the United States Department of Agriculture.

A farmer in the Central West applied to a county agent for enrollment in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement—which is conducted jointly by the United States Department of Agriculture and the various states—but explained that it was against his policy "to sign anything." The county agent reported the circumstances to the department and stated that the farmer in question was thoroughly progressive and was deeply interested in better methods of animal breeding, also that his verbal pledge to use pure bred sires could be accepted as fully dependable as a written statement.

The department acted on the county agent's written recommendations and issued a certificate of enrollment to the farmer. This unusual instance is considered noteworthy as an example of the modern trend in stock-raising methods. It shows how a farmer who is ultra-cautious in business matters is staunchly behind the use of good blood in animal breeding, notwithstanding that pure bred live stock is sometimes regarded only as a diversion of the rich. On the contrary, an increasing quantity of evidence shows that the use of pure bred sires means greater utility value and is sound farming.

The first organization of dealers, it is said, was the "fraternity of pepperers," and it was in the Fourteenth century that the name was changed to the "guild of grocers," which depleted on its coat of arms six cloves.

Venice at its height traded in spices to the amount of $10,000,000 annually, and it vied with Portugal in securing cargoes from far eastern ports. Columbus was bound for the spices of the East when he came upon a new continent, and Vasco da Gama, the famous sea fighter, made one of his most important voyages to secure a cargo of pepper, cinnamon and ginger from India.

Light and Dark Stars

Two hundred millions of miles away is a star called Algol. It is the second brightest star in the constellation of Perseus and it has the curious habit of varying in brightness at regular intervals.

After much research we know now that Algol consists of two stars—one bright, the other dark, says London Tit-Bits. They are each about a million miles in diameter and about two million miles apart. They revolve around one another and when the dark star is between us and the bright one the light we receive from the latter diminishes.

There are several other stars of the Algol type, and it is simply through our researches that we are aware that there exist in the heavens dark stars—stars which give no light at all and are in themselves totally invisible.

How many there may be we do not know, for it is only by their eclipsing bright stars that we can recognize them at all.

Get Loans From "Aunt"

In Paris and other big French cities the pawnbroker is called "my aunt." In France one needn't blush in doing business with the pawnbroker, for he is the state; that is, the government conducts the pawnbroking business. It does it very well, too, if I am to believe the testimony of some Americans who have "traded" with "My Aunt" while awaiting delayed remittances from home. "My Aunt" has had a good year's business. She does little business nowadays with the working-man, for he is always in work. The center of poverty has moved. It is the white-collar brigade which, unable to make both ends meet, resorts to "My Aunt." Oddly enough, "My Aunt's" shop in Paris is on "the Hill of Piety." Not a misprint for pity.—A. B. L., in World Traveler Magazine.

Franklin's Thrift

We hear a great deal of Benjamin Franklin as the great exponent of thrift, remarks the Kansas City Star. Historians recall, however, that the great scientist-statesman was not always thrifty enough. In his refusal to patent his famous stove, he was wasteful of his own and the public's profit. He wished his idea to be given free to the world, and so did not protect his invention; an Englishman made some changes for the worse in the Franklin fireplace, secured a patent on it, and reaped a fortune from the sales.

Fear Alligator's Tail

In several of the southern states alligator farms are maintained for the purpose of using the hides for shoes and other leather articles. It is said that the keepers of these creatures are more in fear of their tails than their teeth. When attacking an enemy an alligator will try to strike first with its powerful tail before using its cruel teeth.

POULTRY FACTS

PROPER METHODS FOR PREPARING POULTRY

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A broad field for specialization by farmers in producing table poultry of prime quality is felt to exist by the United States Department of Agriculture. Most poultry, says the department, is shipped alive by producers because producers are not skilled in dressing and are not equipped to handle and ship the dressed poultry in good condition over long distances.

Shippers of dressed poultry will find it profitable as a rule to fatten the birds for a period of ten to fourteen days before killing, the department says. Requirements of the market to which the poultry are sent should determine whether the birds should be scalded or dry picked, and also the style of dressing. It is extremely important that the birds be well bled and thoroughly chilled immediately after slaughter, to remove all body heat.

Failure to chill properly is often responsible for spoilage. In warm weather dressed poultry should be shipped packed in ice to prevent spoilage in transit. Grading for quality, uniformity, and size is desirable.

Shipping of poor quality birds in separate packages is also desirable when the quantity to be shipped is sufficiently large to make this step practicable, the department says.

It probably will not pay to fatten poultry that is in fairly good condition of flesh, before shipping them alive, because the shrinkage in weight of specially fattened poultry is likely to be heavy during the journey to market, the department points out. But if the poultry is very thin it will probably pay to fatten the birds for a few days or a week.

In shipping alive, producers are urged to grade the birds by age and kind, and so far as practicable to ship the different classes in separate coops. Overcrowding in coops, especially during hot weather, causes heavy loss. Feed should be withheld from the poultry a sufficient length of time before shipping, to insure arrival of the birds on the market with empty crops.

In shipping either live or dressed poultry, the department emphasizes the importance of determining the best days of the week for poultry on the market selected, and the planning of shipments to arrive on those days. Care should always be taken that coops or containers in which poultry is shipped are plainly marked with the name and address of both the receiver and shipper.

Further detailed information as to the proper methods of killing, picking, chilling, packing and shipping poultry applicable to the use of producers, as well as brief descriptions of commercial methods, are given in Farmers' Bulletin 1377, entitled "Marketing Poultry," copies of which can be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, upon request of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Satisfactory House for Ducks Is Easily Built

The essentials of a satisfactory duck house are a good, tight roof, tight sides and back, and ample ventilation. A very good type is a simple shed-roof house, four feet high at the back and seven at the front, ten or twelve feet wide and whatever length the size of the flock would require. Provide a raised floor covered with sand, and kept liberally covered with litter. As for materials build the framework of dimension stuff, and if strict economy in first cost is essential, cover the entire building, roof and sides, with prepared roofing. Leave in the front a door, and windows the full length of the house. Half the windows should be glass, and the other half protected with burlap or muslin to keep out drafts and rain or snow, but allow for ventilation. The windows should all be arranged so that ventilation may be increased or diminished as the need changes with weather conditions.

Give Chickens Free Run Whenever It Is Possible

It is better to fence the garden so that the chickens cannot get into it than it is to fence them in close quarters to prevent them from eating the crop. What is true with the garden is true with all crops that might be injured by the birds. Fence such crops in, and let the chickens range whenever possible. Birds need green feed and exercise if they are to stay healthy. Continual use of a single run for chickens causes the ground to become "fowl-sick" and heavily infested with parasite eggs.

Vermin Worry Broody Hen

A common trouble in natural incubation is lice. Most hens carry a few lice upon them all the time. In the active hen the number of lice upon her do not increase rapidly, but in a sluggish, broody hen multiplication of lice increases very rapidly. To check this the bird must be dusted with sodium fluoride, or a good house powder before she is placed upon the hatching eggs, at least once during the hatching period, and again just before the chicks hatch.

Help Milk Yield by Using Better Stock

Big Increase in Production in Delaware Community.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An increase of over 1,800,000 gallons in the annual milk production of New Castle county, Delaware, without increasing the number of dairy cows owned, has followed five years' dairy improvement work, in which the county agent, progressive dairy farmers, and agricultural organizations co-operated. This county is located near a large city, affording a good market for whole milk, and dairying is an important farm industry.

When extension work in dairying was begun in New Castle county, many farmers were in the habit of buying a medium type of grade cow without a guaranty of health. Following a county meeting of dairymen in 1918, four carloads of pure bred cows from herds under federal supervision for tuberculosis control were brought in and distributed as far as possible at the rate of one to a farm, so that as many farmers as possible might learn for themselves whether or not the investment paid. The boys and girls on the farms became interested, were organized into a club, and a pure bred calf secured by each member. New clubs have been organized each year following, and exhibits of club members' stock are a feature of district shows and the state fair.

Club members have produced about one-fifth of the present holdings of pure bred stock in the county. Pure bred bulls and cows have been purchased by many farmers, after the movement was begun, on their own initiative. There are now about 900 pure bred dairy cattle in the county, while in 1915 there were only 380. A carefully worked-out ration is fed.

Over 4,500 dairy cattle in the county are under federal supervision for tuberculosis control. Four annual consignment sales of surplus stock have been held, the 1923 sale totaling over $7,000.

Cautious Farmer Boosts Use of Pure Bred Sires

Striking evidence that live stock improvement by the use of pure bred sires is one of the most conservative and safe methods is related by an official of the United States Department of Agriculture. A farmer in the Central West applied to a county agent for enrollment in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement—which is conducted jointly by the United States Department of Agriculture and the various states—but explained that it was against his policy "to sign anything." The county agent reported the circumstances to the department and stated that the farmer in question was thoroughly progressive and was deeply interested in better methods of animal breeding, also that his verbal pledge to use pure bred sires could be accepted as fully dependable as a written statement.

The department acted on the county agent's written recommendations and issued a certificate of enrollment to the farmer. This unusual instance is considered noteworthy as an example of the modern trend in stock-raising methods. It shows how a farmer who is ultra-cautious in business matters is staunchly behind the use of good blood in animal breeding, notwithstanding that pure bred live stock is sometimes regarded only as a diversion of the rich. On the contrary, an increasing quantity of evidence shows that the use of pure bred sires means greater utility value and is sound farming.

SPLENDID PICTURES TAKEN

10,000 Lakes Studio, James Gorham Proprietor, Snapped All Incidents of "Better Sires Day"

The 10,000 Lakes Studio may be termed Brainerd's official photographer on "Better Sires Day," for James Gorham covered nearly every feature of the great day. In his windows may be seen some 60 or more photographs of the cattle, the parade, the apportionment, the judging, the speakers, etc.

Large views were made of the Brainerd Boys band. There are views of many of the parade entries, for instance the American Legion drum corps, the Hedstrom orchestra which played for the United Commercial travelers, the Rotary club and float as it passed the court house the Echo stock farm exhibit leading the cattle in the parade, and many others.

Mr. Gorham has made a price on these photographs in half dozen lots which is so moderate that it would never pay any one to use his own camera in taking such pictures. It is hoped there will be a good response in buying them so that it will be some encouragement for him when he covers a day in such a public spirited way. A special display of the pictures is being made in the window of his studio. Citizens sending these pictures to friends will do much to further advertise "Better Sires Day" in Brainerd.

"THE TWO DICKS" TO BE PRESENTED

Well Known Cast Has Been Given Frequent Rehearsals by Principal

"The play—the play's the thing!" On Friday night of this week the play goes of this city will be treated to a two-act comedy "The Two Dicks" put on by the "Brainonian" staff of the high school to be given in the high school auditorium, May 16th.

The well known cast has been having frequent rehearsals under the direction of Miss Tornstrom. Remember "A Girl Made to Order" "Box and Cox," "Sauce for the Gossings," and how you chuckled and laughed, how your sympathy was aroused, how you nearly screamed from fright, etc.? You'll do all this and more when you view "Two Dicks". The play shows the adventures of two young women, both supposedly engaged to the same Dick and by a queer tricking of fate, cast into the same house with him. The predicament of the host and hostess in trying to keep them apart causes innumerable laughing situations.

The play can best be appreciated by being seen so let's go! Tickets at the door or from high school students. The cast of characters is as follows:

Miles Lambert of New York—Walter Engbretson.
Dickenson Jerome also of N. Y.—Kenneth Olthoff.
Dixon Jerome of Pittsburg—Harry Lyddon.

Betty (Mrs. Miles Lambert)—Helene Buscher.
Alice Sinclair (engaged to Dickenson)—Vivian Gillette.

Marie Brooks (engaged to Dixon)—Sophie Brending.
Anna, maid at the Lamberts—Marion Bachelder.

There will also be a play by the girls of the sewing classes, and some very interesting music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Calkin, living four miles east of the city. She is a charming young lady and has many friends in the city as well as in the vicinity of her home.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith of Brainerd. The happy couple left on the noon train Saturday for a short honeymoon in Seattle, Washington, after which they will make their home in Brainerd.

SPLENDID PICTURES TAKEN

10,000 Lakes Studio, James Gorham Proprietor, Snapped All Incidents of "Better Sires Day"

The 10,000 Lakes Studio may be termed Brainerd's official photographer on "Better Sires Day," for James Gorham covered nearly every feature of the great day. In his windows may be seen some 60 or more photographs of the cattle, the parade, the apportionment, the judging, the speakers, etc.

Large views were made of the Brainerd Boys band. There are views of many of the parade entries, for instance the American Legion drum corps, the Hedstrom orchestra which played for the United Commercial travelers, the Rotary club and float as it passed the court house the Echo stock farm exhibit leading the cattle in the parade, and many others.

Mr. Gorham has made a price on these photographs in half dozen lots which is so moderate that it would never pay any one to use his own camera in taking such pictures. It is hoped there will be a good response in buying them so that it will be some encouragement for him when he covers a day in such a public spirited way. A special display of the pictures is being made in the window of his studio. Citizens sending these pictures to friends will do much to further advertise "Better Sires Day" in Brainerd.

"THE TWO DICKS" TO BE PRESENTED

Friday Night of This Week Two Act Comedy Will be Given in High School Auditorium

MISS TORNSTROM DIRECTING

Well Known Cast Has Been Given Frequent Rehearsals by Principal

(Contributed)
"The play—the play's the thing!" On Friday night of this week the play goes of this city will be treated to a two-act comedy "The Two Dicks" put on by the "Brainonian" staff of the high school to be given in the high school auditorium, May 16th.

The well known cast has been having frequent rehearsals under the direction of Miss Tornstrom. Remember "A Girl Made to Order" "Box and Cox," "Sauce for the Goss-lings", and how you chuckled and laughed, how your sympathy was aroused, how you nearly screamed from fright, etc.? You'll do all this and more when you view "Two Dicks". The play shows the adventures of two young women, both supposedly engaged to the same Dick and by a queer tricking of fate, cast into the same house with him. The predicament of the host and hostess in trying to keep them apart causes innumerable laughing situations.

The play can best be appreciated by being seen so let's go! Tickets at the door or from high school students.

The cast of characters is as follows:

Miles Lambert of New York—Walter Engbretson.

Dickenson Jerome also of N. Y.—Kenneth Olthoff.

Dixon Jerome of Pittsburg—Harry Lyndon.

Betty (Mrs. Miles Lambert)—Helene Buscher.

Alice Sinclair (engaged to Dickenson)—Vivian Gillette.

Marie Brooks (engaged to Dixon)—Sophie Brending.

Anna, maid at the Lamberts—Marion Bachelard.

There will also be a play by the girls of the sewing classes, and some very interesting music.

Celebrates 8th Birthday

George Bahr was pleasantly surprised Monday afternoon, May 12th, at the home of his mother Mrs. E. E. Bahr, by eight of his little playmates. The occasion was George's eighth birthday. Many games were played, after which a delicious luncheon was served. Wm. Stillwell, uncle of the little host, then treated all to an auto ride.

Those present were Richard Stillwell, George Fourre, Adolph Graff, Robert Merrill, Robert Hanson, Clinton Dougherty, Morris Trask and Leroy Anderson.

Chiropractic teaches that just as pressure on the nerve of the arm will cause the arm to "go to sleep," or as pressure on the nerve of the leg will cause the leg to "go to sleep," so also will pressure on the nerves to the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, or any other organ or part of the body, cause that organ or part to express its functions abnormally in what is called dis-ease. GREB-DELANEY GO WILL BE A BATTLE

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, May 13.—When Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, meets Jack Delaney, the slim Bridgeport challenger, at the Yankee Stadium in June, many of the experts believe the title-holder will be in for the warmest time of his career. Some think he will be stopped.

Greb has been scheduled for the warmest time in his career so many times that he should have been burnt to a crisp by this time, if there were good reasons for believing that he did have a hot time of it.

The champion is, without a doubt, one of the most individual types that has ever held a title. With the possible exception of Johnny Dundee, the greatest freak of the ring, Greb has fought more, and in more classes, than any fighter of the present day or least.

He has been given little credit for a record that is really remarkable. The critics say that he can't hit, that he is a slapper, that he doesn't know how to box, that he has to use rough tactics and that he hasn't a single attribute of a great fighter.

In spite of this, Greb goes out and beats any fighter that he really wants to beat. He was the light heavyweight champion twice, and he lost the title twice to Gene Tunney on two peculiar decisions. He then turned around and won the middleweight championship and announced, with all sincerity, that he was willing to fight Dempsey.

It is told about ring circles that Greb once made Jack Dempsey look not so good when he boxed him several years ago while Dempsey was in training for the Brennan fight, and it is more or less known that Dempsey declined to accept the services of Greb when the Pittsburgher volunteered to help him get in shape for Carpenter.

Greb's greatest assets are the heart of a lion, the confidence of a champion and the possession of enough energy to go 15 rounds with the speed of a shadow-boxing flyweight. Greb took Tom Gibbons, when the St. Paul light heavyweight was in his prime, and gave him a lacing in Madison Square Garden. Gibbons said later that he was not in shape, and it is known that he was just out of the flu, but that does not show in the records.

For several years it has been the opinion of the experts that Greb would go along to a natural end unless someone discovered a strong legitimate middleweight, one with speed and a snappy punch who would not be bothered by the necessity of making weight.

Delaney is just such a fighter. He is a tall, rangy, young French-Canadian, with a good punch, with a lot of clever boxing in him and with plenty of experience.

DEMPSEY VS. GIBBONS IN OFFICIAL FILM

MOVING PICTURES AT LYCEUM
SHOW DEMPSEY AT TOP

TO BE SHOWN WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY, AFTERNOON
AND NIGHT

(Review by Hemlock Peterson of Duluth Herald)

In the great crowds that surged in and out of the Orpheum theatre from noon yesterday until well into the night, with moving pictures of the Jack Dempsey-Tommy Gibbons world's championship fight at Shelby, Mont., as the attraction, were many boxing experts of Duluth and Superior who pronounced Gibbons the greatest defensive mitt wielder in the heavyweight division.

After seeing Tommy step through fifteen rounds with the "Manassa Mauler" and not suffering any punishment to speak of, the fans were unanimous in handing Tommy the palm as a defensive tactician. In the pictures Tommy does not show so much on the offense, but his manner of blocking, side-stepping, catching blows, going back and picking the socks out of the air is little short of marvelous.

The pictures are really among the best ever shown in this city for they show the champion going at full speed for fifteen rounds, and when you can see Jack traveling in high for forty-five minutes you surely get an eye full. What a tiger-man he is! Rushing, slamming, first with one paw, then with the other. Always aggressive, continually hammering, busier than any carpenter you ever saw.

Duluth fans now have a first-hand picture of just what it means for an opponent to toe the scratch with the world's champion. Weighing better than 190 pounds, he shows the speed of a featherweight and the endurance of a marathoner. Fighters who show plenty of ring activity are known to the talent as human dynamos. If that is correct then Dempsey is a young cyclone. Man, how he can pump those murderous paws at a human target. He misses with one shot and instantly, in the wake, comes another wallop. Hit or miss, he so handles himself that he is never out of position to shoot. In his catalogue of blows there are no taps. He uses nothing but elephant guns.

Duluth has seen Shelby close up and those who viewed the little cow town of the Montana plains yesterday took off their hats to those sturdy promoters who showed such steel nerve in engineering such a costly show in such an out-of-the-way place.

One interesting feature of the pictures shows Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons, embracing Tommy at the end of the seventh round. That show of affection came from the fact that Kane had won a $10,000 bet that Gibbons would stay seven rounds. Gibbons, himself, had a wad of money placed that he would be in the ring at the end of the seventh session.

These pictures will be shown at the Lyceum Wednesday and Thursday, both afternoon and night.

MAROON DIAMOND SQUAD TO VISIT JAPAN THIS FALL

Chicago, May 13.—A trip to Japan next fall is the lot of the University of Chicago baseball team. Athletic Director A. A. Staggs having accepted an invitation from Waseda university in Japan to play that and other schools in the orient in the autumn. The Maroon outfit will leave the Midway in the latter part of August or early September. Their trip probably will consume about three months. The invitation came from Prof. Iso Abe of Waseda, a leader in Japanese athletic circles.

This will make the fourth such trip for the Chicago teams, other jaunts to Japan having been made in 1910, 1915 and 1920.

Gibbons said later that he was not in shape, and it is known that he was just out of the flu, but that does not show in the records.

For several years it has been the opinion of the experts that Greb would go along to a natural end unless someone discovered a strong legitimate middleweight, one with speed and a snappy punch who would not be bothered by the necessity of making weight.

Delaney is just such a fighter. He is a tall, rangy, young French-Canadian, with a good punch, with a lot of clever boxing in him and with plenty of experience.

WILL HELP OUTDOOR LIFE IN THE U. S.

(By United Press)

Washington, May 13.—Representatives of ninety-six recreational and outdoor life organizations will meet here May 22 to discuss with President Coolidge's Outdoor Recreational Committee ways and means of getting Americans to take more part in outdoor life.

A general plan for uniting the efforts of these organizations and the Presidential committee will be presented by Secretary of War Weeks, chairman of the committee. This plan has been under preparation for more than a month and a thorough study of the situation has been made.

Under the plan the Government will take steps to prevent pollution of streams and protect animal life, along the line urged by some of these organizations.

Representatives of several of the organizations, who have called upon Weeks since the appointment of the committee was first announced at the White House, have urged upon him the inclusion of several points they have been advocating.

In his opening address to the conference Weeks will point to the large number of national reservations, the Federal, State and municipal parks and the thousands of dollars that have been spent by the Government in making outdoor life in America possible.

The Presidential committee hopes to organize a standing organization of those represented to work out plans for State legislation and nation-wide publicity.

Not only will the hunting, fishing and forest preservation organizations be represented, but other sports, including baseball, saddle activities and tennis, golf and swimming organizations will be in evidence when the delegates gather.

The committee's plan calls for help from the Boy Scouts of America, the Girl Scouts, the Campfire Girls, and like organizations. It is hoped that enlistment of these national bodies of boys and girls will not only help to interest older America, but it is felt that early interests of these youngsters will continue after they have grown out of the organizations.

The conference is expected to last for three days, during which time all phases of outdoor life will be discussed. In inviting the delegates the committee asked them to come prepared to present any plans they might have which would forward the movement.

MOVING PICTURES AT LYCEUM SHOW DEMPSEY AT TOP SPEED

TO BE SHOWN WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY, AFTERNOON AND NIGHT

(Review by Hemlock Peterson of Duluth Herald)

In the great crowds that surged in and out of the Orpheum theatre from noon yesterday until well into the night, with moving pictures of the Jack Dempsey-Tommy Gibbons world's championship fight at Shelby, Mont., as the attraction, were many boxing experts of Duluth and Superior who pronounced Gibbons the greatest defensive mitt wielder in the heavyweight division.

After seeing Tommy step through fifteen rounds with the "Manassa Mauler" and not suffering any punishment to speak of, the fans were unanimous in handing Tommy the palm as a defensive tactician. In the pictures Tommy does not show so much on the offense, but his manner of blocking, side-stepping, catching blows, going back and picking the socks out of the air is little short of marvelous.

The pictures are really among the best ever shown in this city for they show the champion going at full speed for fifteen rounds, and when you can see Jack traveling in high for forty-five minutes you surely get an eye full. What a tiger-man he is! Rushing, slamming, first with one paw, then with the other. Always aggressive, continually hammering, busier than any carpenter you ever saw.

Duluth fans now have a first-hand picture of just what it means for an opponent to toe the scratch with the world's champion. Weighing better than 190 pounds, he shows the speed of a featherweight and the endurance of a marathoner. Fighters who show plenty of ring activity are known to the talent as human dynamos. If that is correct then Dempsey is a young cyclone. Man, how he can pump those murderous paws at a human target. He misses with one shot and instantly, in the wake,

JIMMY CAENEY, REDS' STAR SHORTSTOP, RIGHT WITH THE .300 BATTERS

If Caenevy keeps up his early season promises he will improve on his 1923 record with the Cincinnati team. He was obtained by the Reds from the Pacific Coast League two years ago.

comes another wallop. Hit or miss, he so handles himself that he is never out of position to shoot. In his catalogue of blows there are no taps. He uses nothing but elephant guns. Duluth has seen Shelby close up and those who viewed the little cow town of the Montana plains yesterday took off their hats to those sturdy promoters who showed such steel nerve in engineering such a costly show in such an out-of-the-way place.

One interesting feature of the pictures shows Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons, embracing Tommy at the end of the seventh round. That show of affection came from the fact that Kane had won a $10,000 bet that Gibbons would stay seven rounds. Gibbons, himself, had a wad of money placed that he would be in the ring at the end of the seventh session.

These pictures will be shown at the Lyceum Wednesday and Thursday, both afternoon and night.

BEMIDJI BALL TEAM BEATS KELLIHER 3-2

Bemidji, Minn., May 13.—Bemidji opened the Northern Minnesota league schedule, defeating Kelliher 3 to 2 before the largest crowd to ever witness an opening day game here. It was played in one hour and 20 minutes.

Mayor Moberg pitched the first ball, with Ed Rogers, president of the league, catching.

Bemidji scored two runs in the first inning after one was out on a single by C. Bailey, a double by Diedrich, and a single by Sky.

Kelliher tied the score in the seventh after one man was out on an error and singles by Hubbard the Wolfe.

Whiting hit a line drive to C. Bailey at second, who made an unassisted double play, ending Kelliher's rally.

MAROON DIAMOND SQUAD TO VISIT JAPAN THIS FALL

Chicago, May 13.—A trip to Japan next fall is the lot of the University of Chicago baseball team. Athletic Director A. A. Staggs having accepted an invitation from Waseda university in Japan to play that and other schools in the orient in the autumn.

The Maroon outfit will leave the Midway in the latter part of August or early September. Their trip probably will consume about three months. The invitation came from Prof. Iso Abe of Waseda, a leader in Japanese athletic circles.

This will make the fourth such trip for the Chicago teams, other jaunts to Japan having been made in 1910, 1915 and 1920.
